

The Covey oboe, known for its rich sound, impeccable tuning, and highest standards of workmanship, is hand-selected and chosen for your specific needs. The Covey is given the utmost time and special attention in the manufacturing of its keywork. The keywork is made to withstand great demands and provide the most precision in performance. This provides the performer great stability in their equipment for a long period of time.

A standard feature in all Covey oboes is inserts in all of the tone holes. This protects you, the performer, in the event of a crack. You are less vulnerable playing a Covey during that situation; and therefore can maintain your integrity in your work a bit more easily. The Covey provides you the utmost refinement.

* The Covey, available in grenadilla, rosewood, and violet wood, is designed in the newest innovation and research by Ginger Ramsay. Models are referred to as the '400' model. Depending upon your reed design and your tonal production set up, your next oboe could be a Covey '400' model.

The Covey Model oboes are available in grenadilla. Rosewood and violet wood by special order.
